

The Truth About Unions

Management have you believe that Collective Bargaining is a gamble and may try to misrepresent the true nature and purpose of the union.

One of corporate America's favorite attacks upon workers seeking a union is “we don't want a third party to come between us and our employees.”

Which translates to “We want to continue doing whatever we want to do to our employees!”

Want a change? It's time to get on board. Support the IAM!

Newly organized members do not pay any dues until the first contract is negotiated, reviewed and ratified.

Employers may attempt to sway you from supporting the union by saying that your dues are going to be astronomical. They will claim that your monthly dues will be so high that you won't be able to pay for basic necessities.

Employers may try to make you believe they know what your “interests” are and claim you will be sacrificing those to pay union dues.

Having a union means bigger paychecks, stronger benefits and better lives!

Being a part of the IAM makes your voice stronger – it's crucial for job security.

In today's world, when we all risk just becoming a number, the IAM has our backs.
